Since ancient times, we have used our body language to communicate, conveying our emotions and thoughts to those around us. Each person out there has a different body language, encompassing not only facial expressions but also body postures and gestures. Even eye movement is considered as part of the non-verbal communication, being closely followed by touch and using one's personal space. 80% of human communication is actually non-verbal. Some experts argue it may even be more. Body language is considered an integral element of non-verbal communication, being used, consciously or unconsciously, to interact with other people. It is often said that body language will serve to complement verbal communication. Through our gestures, postures and expressions, we are actually transmitting a lot of information about ourselves to the interlocutor. It is clear that the body language can make the difference between a successful interaction and one that is doomed to fail from the start. Basically, the information transmitted through non-verbal means, will ensure proper interaction between two or more people. However, due to cultural differences and other influencing factors, it is important to state that body language can

Over the years, we have come to the conclusion that persuasion is positive while manipulation is the exact opposite. That is not entirely true. Whether you are persuading or manipulating a person, the real difference is your intention. According to some of the scholars studying the difference between manipulation and persuasion, there are three components determining what a person is doing. What intent lies behind your desire to persuade another person? How truthful and transparent is the process you are using? What is the net impact or benefit of your action to the other person? There is manipulative persuasion and dark manipulative persuasion. The first type, manipulative persuasion normally involves attempts to convince another person to do something without necessarily thinking about tactics or specific motivations. Anyone can easily use manipulative persuasion because it is not entirely necessary for the manipulator to understand his/her victim. A persuader will mostly look for ways to make the best out of the people he/she is manipulating. For instance, a politician can try to prevent war by creating peace ties where there were none. He/she might not fully understand the results of the ties, but will try anyway. In fact, a manipulative persuader can try to grasp at straws wildly hoping to get something. On the other hand, dark manipulative persuasion involves understanding the bigger picture and strategizing. The dark persuader understands the person he/she is trying to persuade, knows the exact buttons to push and just how far he will go before getting results. In most cases, manipulators who use dark manipulation techniques are unconcerned with the morality of their actions. All he/she wants is to fulfill his/her desires regardless of the situation. The bright side of dark manipulation is that the manipulator is in most cases aware of what he/she is doing. All of us have manipulated others, knowingly or unknowingly. There are many things we do to get what we want and, in most cases, they are harmless. This book will tell you more about manipulation and Body languages. This book covers What is manipulation Methods of manipulation Developing stages of manipulation Art of persuasion Dark psychology Body language And Much More! It is said that we as human beings have learned how to manipulate each other selfishly. Sometimes it is necessary but in most cases, you will realize it is unnecessary. Dark manipulative persuasion often harms. Perhaps the most unfortunate thing is how the manipulators using dark techniques ignore the damage of their actions. For instance, many researchers conducted across the world over the years have revealed the harmful effects of smoking cigarettes. However, the manufacturing companies still make some successful manipulative advertisements leading people to think that this drug is 'cool'. Consequently, the number of diseases and deaths resulting from this manipulation increase. Those politicians using dark manipulative persuasion techniques to raise into position can facilitate weakened democracy and even foment division. There are other campaigns that use dark manipulative social tactics to support unhealthy and abusive relationships. Buy now!

managing hard people. Use these ideas to charm anyone to give you a positive response. Use these strategies to re-wire your thinking process and change your actions and behavior accordingly.

Your thoughts are your outer world success stories. Therefore, you must get rid of all negative thoughts that constantly hinder your individual growth by draining all your creative energy. Another way of riding negative thoughts is by replacing them with positive affirmations like "I can" instead of "I can't."

Before we actually try to understand the concept of analyzing people, we must prepare ourselves to develop this skill. That is the first step to becoming a good people analyzer. So, the preparation begins with understanding some of the most basic aspects of human nature. It is common among psychologists to compare human beings to onions. We, for some reason, like to cover ourselves with at least four layers so that our true feelings and thoughts are not seen by all and sundry. The outermost layer, which is what strangers see. It contains the most superficial aspects of our personality and in fact, this can be quite different from who we truly are. The way we talk about trivial topics like the weather and current affairs with strangers we are meeting, perhaps, in a bus or at the park, reveals this superficial aspect of our personality. Our outermost layer only does small talk. The second layer is usually what we reveal to those who we interact with a little more than strangers. A classic example would be with how we deal with our co-workers. With your co-workers, it is usual for people to open a part of their outermost layer to reveal the second layer and discuss some parts of emotions and work-related aspects more openly. Similarly, there could be some acquaintances and friends with whom you are willing to reveal a bit of this second layer. The third layer is only for those we share an intimate relationship with. As is obvious, being able to reveal your third layer takes time and patience. A close friend, a spouse, etc. could be one who has seen this third layer. The fourth layer is the deepest and the darkest part of our personality that we don't share with anyone. In fact, coming to terms with these thoughts within yourself can be uncomfortable. So, revealing this layer can be very, very difficult and, perhaps, can be seen if there is a kind of a 'soul mate' in your life. Your ability to analyze people depends on how many of the above layers you can see. One of the biggest factors that prevent our ability to analyze people from developing are the mental barriers resulting from years of social conditioning and/or personal experiences. While some of these barriers are obvious ones like racial, gender, etc. kind of prejudices, there are many others. Every time we form an opinion about people without clearly examining the facts or correct knowledge or even the correct context, we are building these barriers, which taint our ability to read and analyze people well. These mental barriers can also be in the form of some kind of fear and/or discrimination from our earlier life experiences. The more we learn to unlearn certain biases and conditions that are a result of our upbringing and/or the noise heard in the society we live in, the more accentuated we become with our ability to

In a small wooded lot a busy woman stumbles upon a strange doll the neighbors possibly left. She attempts to reveal who brought the toy to her home, but she uncovers no real leads. Then when a letter turns up asking her to give the doll away as soon as possible, she ends up on the edge of reason as the doll is in the midst of being reclaimed by someone. The doll although small and cuddly resembles a somewhat black entity similar to a doll she keeps in her home, but when a nearby psychic and fortune teller comes to her home asking her to give up the doll to keep her sanity, but she refuses. The stuffed animal then turns out to be more than she bargained for when the bear starts to grow a tail and red eyes. When she discovers those details, she desperately tries to send it away to a pawn shop owner, but the next day he ends up dead, and a new feeling that the stuffed bear may not be what she considered a stuffed cuddly toy anymore. The story focuses on the character of Mary, and the stuffed bear that she suddenly inherits when the doll is left on her doorstep. She finds that although the stuffed bear did have an owner, he ended up in a mental institution, and the bear was simply left behind, either by someone else or the bear itself. She doesn't want to come to the terms that it could have ended up on her doorstep, by itself, but when the tale that the previous owner claimed is finally revealed, she desperately searches for an answer to the horror of Truggle.
